Foreword . . .

The Beginning is now at hand, soon the gears shall mesh and the wheels of production will be revolving in motion.

It is our fondest hope that within these pages, this Carnival of Dreams will provide a carnival sentiment, as well as cherished memories. Many pictures appear here; many names are written here, but more important than names or pictures are the friends, the fun, the work and the dreams so lightly touched upon.

It is our fondest hope that this CROSSROADS for 1961 will bring to mind memories, memories of those friends, the work, and the fun that had been shared. But better still, it must rekindle the flame of dreams within each of us which only these days so effortlessly provide.

Dedication . . .

Within the covers of the 1961 Crossroads, "The Carnival of Dreams," is the story of a student body. It is a story of fun and folly, of progress and achievement. But lying between the pages and pictures is the greater, unexpressed story of hope and aspiration. Perhaps, if there could be material evidence of these two activities, their story and photographs would be of greater abundance and more significant meaning.

Unfortunately, this cannot be performed, but the CARNIVAL OF DREAMS never ceases to exist within each student. From these dreams come the essential activities of our way; a way which shall never cease to exist as long as students aspire and dream. Hence, we dedicate our book to these students as they go through life in the CARNIVAL OF DREAMS.

dent Life

No, mother, he doesn't do this for a living. It was student orientation night.

Keep that head down, Dan!

Why so pensive, Paul?

It's hard to tell the rose petals from confetti.

These girls make being in politics a pleasure.

It takes determination as well as skill to bowl those pins over.

Our cheerful "kitchen crew" keep the students body going with lots of delicious food.

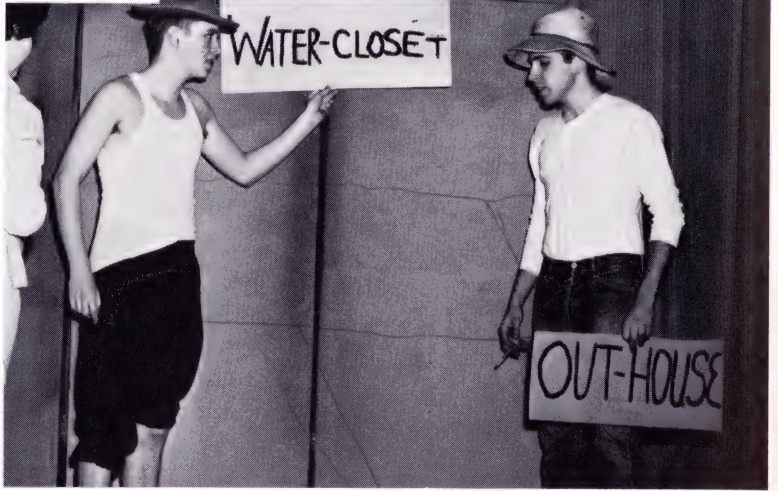

Wow! If all babysitters look like the Queen, I don't ever want to grow up.

Dean Litton is a man of many talents and interests.

Galen thinks his name for "it" is much more refined.

Student life is sometimes directed toward a more serious slant on life.

The winning smile in Southern style.

Sue's skit introduces the beats.

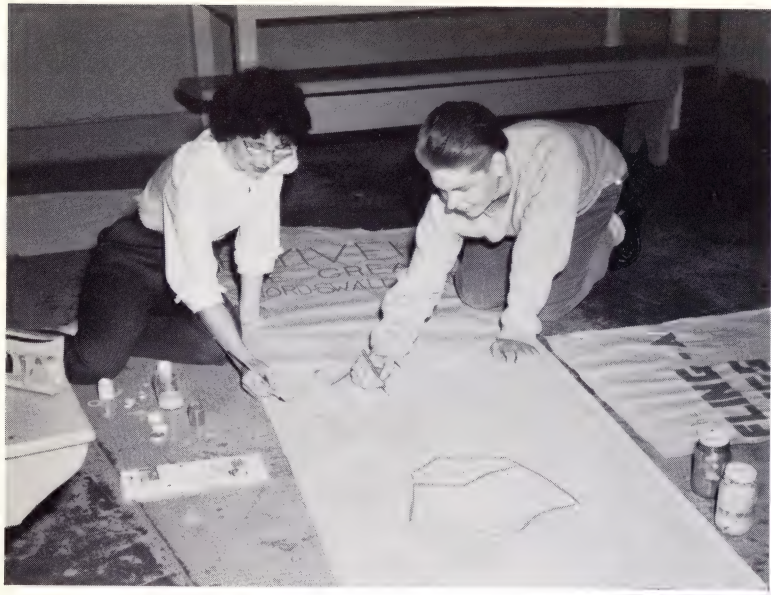

The ends!

The excitement of a bus trip always brings smiles.

Last year's royalty still glows brightly.

Crossroad's staff members work hard on ball decorations.

Beat 'em, bust 'em that's our custom.

Work break on deadline day.

Tell Santa all about it, Robby.

The homecoming parade highlighted football season.

Recognize these lovelies?

Fight, furiously, fellows!

Why, I never dreamed I'd be chosen!

Farewell . . .

One lingering, last look backward down the deserted hall. The mind clouds with images of familiar faces and smiles, while remembering the banging of locker doors, the shouting of voices, the friendly greetings and the ringing of class bells befuddle the brain. You stand there a moment, slightly stunned by the immediate recurrence of such memories, and then you realize that it is all over. A small lump forms in your throat as you are ready to leave, for you know that a small part of your life will always be connected with what remains there. As you pass through the final doorway and into the splendor of what lies beyond, remember as you walk away that your Carnival of Dreams shall never be left behind, but always be present within your heart.

May the best of everything follow you through that doorway!
